

HAIGH: About

Improvement of Country Roads

Farmer's Advocate: In a young country the roads receive but little attention as a rule, and in many cases fortunately so, for we have seen it where after the tinkering dubbed "improvement" a fairly good trail had been spoiled, and the last state of the road was worse than the first. It may be assumed that road-making and road-repairing are done in order to have the roads in the best shape for spring and fall travel, consequently there are a few primary rules to be observed. Hills should be cut down and the hollows filled up as far as is practicable. The more the surface is improved, the more the grades should be reduced. The construction of an embankment (or grade, as it is often termed) through a low spot calls for careful work. The earth should be deposited in layers, so that it will settle uniformly. When the scraper is used, each scraperful should be levelled down, otherwise the settling will be uneven, and hills and hollows will be left. The latter will fill with water when rain falls, and the result resulting will be disagreeable, will increase the draft, and will result in material being carried out of the low spots; just the opposite to what is wanted. The use of the harrow and a heavily-weighted roller on the road as each layer is deposited, will tend to firm and harden it.

No road can remain good for any considerable length of time without good drainage. Drainage of roads may take three forms—underdrainage, side ditches, and surface drainage. Given a dry subsoil, the first of these may be dispensed with. There are spots, however, in which the use of tile would be very beneficial. It is no use to gravel or stone a road unless the underdrainage is good, otherwise the hard material will eventually work down. In places kept soft by a spring, a line of tile along the side of the road will be more useful than if the height of the grade is increased. Side ditches are to take the water from the roadway, also to prevent any coming onto the road from the sides. They should in all cases be constructed so as to take the water away quickly. The digging of a ditch in a low spot, making it a sort of open cistern or pond, is a very bad scheme as the water from it will be continually soaking into and softening the grade close to it. Side ditches need not be deep, but should have a broad, falling side toward the road, and should have a good outlet, as no good road can be obtained if the ditches are canals, holding the water until it dries up. The road machine or grader is the best implement for this work. Side ditchers are essential where a hill is cut down to make the road. The steeper the side, the greater the need for a good side ditch at that side, so as to prevent the water washing the road or taking the center of the road for it. Surface drainage calls for a knowledge of the construction of what is termed the crown, which should be 12 inches in 25 or 30 feet. The smoother the surface is kept, the less the crown required. A crown can be too great, with the result that the travel is entirely in the center of the road, or the side slopes wash heavily. If soils are put on the road, they tend to work up into a ridge on the center. They should be torn to pieces and levelled with a harrow.

The maintenance of the road in good condition may be summed up in the getting rid of the water as quickly as possible, and the keeping of the surface smooth and the side ditches open. In some parts of this Province the road allowance has been cultivated and then let run. In all such cases seedling down to grass should be enforced; unless so done, a road may become a veritable nursery for weed seed.

The construction of culverts calls for considerable attention. The use of wood for such purposes is not up-to-date or judicious; tile or cement are much better. Some municipalities, and the C.P.R. are using tile extensively. In Ontario, the Road Commissioner recommends cement culverts, which can be constructed by anyone with the use of moulds at a foundry for from $8 to $12, according to size. The moulds are composed of an outside casing, resembling a stove pipe, and are 21-2 feet long; the inner being less in diameter, so as to leave a space between the two, of about 4-12 inches. In addition to the above means of keeping roads in good shape, may be mentioned the use of wide tires, three inches or upwards, on heavy wagons.

U.S. Opinion on the Fielding Tariff

New York Evening Post:

For more edifying than these dry details, is the spectacle of a growing country calmly discussing schedules which we are told would spell ruin here, and undertaking substantial revision of its tariff downward without the slightest fear of shattering the industrial fabric. Why should that soiling process which is held in fairly superstitious horror at Washington, be cheerfully proposed at Ottawa? Why, simply because Canada has never been keyed up to our artificial pitch. Her manufacturers have never grown so fat on treasury favors as to hold the rod over the entire country. The result is that the Dominion has never got into that ridiculous impasse in which our ruling party lies paralyzed. Canada has never built up a customs system so sensitive that, if touched anywhere, it will turn out a veritable infernal machine and blow up the meddler with all hands. There is still a saving remnant in Canadian politics which sees that the tariff has played a very small part in the growth of the country. The fertile vacant places of Canada have been her wealth; her forests and teaming waters. She thrives precisely as we have done, by hard work applied to the gifts of nature. Yet that wholesome truth is now questioned here. Her manufacturers, like ours insist that the government owes them a living, and a good one. Still she has kept her freedom of action, and Mr. Fielding's proposals though obviously imperfect, show at least an intention to legislate for the nation and not for a class. To us who are told that our prosperity and our very safety lie in letting the Dingley bill alone, Mr. Fielding's act must seem according to our political affiliations, like that of a hero or a madman. That he seems neither in Canada indicates either that our northern neighbors are running wantonly into self-destruction, or that we are living under the tyranny of a most insubstantial bogey.

To the Public

Having sold my dental practice and good will to Drs. Lowther and Robertson, I wish to thank my numerous patients for their patronage in the past and ask them as a matter of personal interest to extend the same to my successors as I consider they have no equals in the West and few superiors anywhere. Dr. Lowther has been associated with me for some time both here and in the East. If a brilliant college course in one of America's greatest dental schools, if honesty, sobriety and skill count for anything, then I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. Lowther and Robertson to my friends. PARLIAMENT

Special Correspondence:

The Transcontinental Railway Bill received its third reading in the Commons on May 26th. It will come up for its second reading in the Senate to-morrow, June 14th, and may very well not receive the final assent until the end of the month. This leaves only four months of summer in which to make preparations for active work and to carry on construction, as compared with full six months for construction, as might and should have been available had the bill gone through the House of Commons on its merits instead of being met by the persistent obstruction of the Opposition. There is no question that the persistent efforts of these gentlemen have practically set back the completion of the enterprise by another year. It might have been thought, when Parliament had once decided in favor of the transcontinental scheme, that it would have been the part of wisdom and of self-reliance for the Opposition to have joined forces to aid in putting the scheme through at the earliest possible date and on the most favorable terms. Instead of that, however, from day to day, from week to week, from month to month and even into the second year, their opposition has been persistent and continuous, of every possible kind and from every possible point of view.

When opposition and obstruction had come to a finish, and when nothing more remained to be said or done except to take the final vote of Parliament on the third reading, the fight between monopoly and competition had been decided. Every effort to uphold the exclusive control of the C.P.R. in the North West had failed. The people had declared, or were about to finally declare, for transcontinental railway competition. But even then, instead of accepting the situation, the Leader of the Opposition in the last words of his last speech before the vote was taken, made his last kick on behalf of monopoly by threatening that should the Conservative party come to power at the elections which must take place at least within two years, the party would not carry out the bargain made with the Grand Trunk Pacific and would prevent that company from completing its contract. This position was stated and re-stated by Mr. Borden in the climax of his speech, but the following sentence will serve to show his general position:

"We do not propose that the voice of the people shall be stifled, and we declare that if the Conservative party is returned to power at the next general election, it will enact such legislation as will enable the will of the people to prevail over the will of this corporation, however great and however powerful it may be."

While this may seem an empty boast, based as it is upon the possibility of the Conservative party coming to power, it necessarily has an immediate effect far beyond that of a mere boast. It is the privilege of the Leader of the Opposition or of his followers to claim the certainty of their return to power, or, when he uses that possibility as a threat against a national enterprise, as he does in this case, he is, in the least, abusing his position to the detriment of the public interest. The statement made by Mr. Borden that his party would not, if returned to power, stand by the contract made by the Grand Trunk Pacific Company, is a means taken to prevent the bargain now made, and to prevent its being carried out. The British Empire is the man upon whom the victory of the enterprise depends. Anything which tends to shake the confidence of the public in the success of the enterprise is a necessary and a general election is necessarily always a matter of some uncertainty, and when Mr. Borden deliberately and on his responsibility as a member of parliament and as Leader of one of the great parties in parliament stated that the bargain made by the Government would not be carried out should his party come to power, he took the strongest and only remaining means of discrediting the enterprise with the British investor, and preventing the money necessary for its successful completion from being raised. This is the necessary result, and giving Mr. Borden credit for the ability which he unquestionably possesses, this must have been his intent. It was the last blow, and possibly the most effective, that he could strike on behalf of railway monopoly in Canada; and by his action on that occasion in this connection he and his party must be judged.

THE DUNDONALD INCIDENT

Order in Council Relieving Lord Dundonald of the Command of the Canadian Militia

"Extract from a report of the committee of the honorable the privy council, approved by His Excellency the Governor-General on the 14th day of June, 1904.

"The sub-committee of council having had under consideration certain recent public utterances of the Right Honorable the Earl of Dundonald, general officer commanding the Canadian militia, and a report in relation thereto by the minister of militia, report as follows:

"On the 8th day of June, 1904, the attention of the minister of militia was drawn to a despatch in one of the newspapers of Ottawa purporting to give a report of a speech made by Lord Dundonald at a dinner in Montreal, in which he assailed the government and particularly the Honorable Mr. Fisher, minister of agriculture, in relation to their action in militia affairs. On the same day, the minister of militia addressed a letter to Lord Dundonald, calling his attention to the report, and enquiring whether it correctly stated his utterances and the attendant circumstances. To this a reply was received from Lord Dundonald admitting the substantial correctness of the report in question.

"Lord Dundonald's general remarks as to what he calls political interference, as well as those in relation to the particular case which he mentions, indicate on his part a regrettable failure to appreciate the principles of a responsible constitutional government. Lord Dundonald's recommendation of any gentleman for appointment as an officer of the militia would in itself have no force or effect. It could only become effective after receiving (1) the approval of the minister of militia; (2) the approval of His Excellency the Governor-General in council. The power of approval on the part of each of these authorities must of necessity carry with it the right of enquiry and rejection.

"In the case of members of the cabinet, while all have an equal degree of responsibility in a constitutional sense, yet in the practical working out of responsible government in a country of such vast extent as Canada, it is found necessary to attach a special responsibility to each minister for the public affairs of the province or district with which he has close political connection, and with which his colleagues may not be so well acquainted. Mr. Fisher, while sharing with his colleagues that general responsibility already referred to, represents in a particular manner the eastern townships of the Province of Quebec. If, when it was proposed to form a new regiment in that district he interested himself in the work and sought to make the organization effective, he was not merely exercising a right, he was discharging a duty both to the people of the district and to his colleagues in the cabinet, who would expect him to inform himself of all the facts and advise them before approval by the cabinet of the proposed arrangement.

"Mr. Fisher states that so far as his interference related in any way to politics, it was not to give the new regiment a political color but to guard against that very evil which he had reason to believe was one of the causes of failure of some previous efforts to maintain efficient military organizations in the eastern townships. He interfered, not to have the regiment officered by his own political friends, but to see that capable military men of all political colors received as far as possible equal consideration. That he did not seek to give his own political color to the regiment is abundantly evidenced by the fact that of eighteen names submitted in the list only one was struck out by him, and by the further fact that a majority of the gentlemen chosen for commissions with his approval are his political opponents.

"In the case of the gentleman particularly mentioned by Lord Dundonald as having been objected to, it has been shown that he had never been shown to be connected with the militia and, therefore, was not regarded as a suitable person to have the rank of major; and that Mr. Fisher recommended for the place another gentleman who was also a political opponent, but who was well qualified by military service for a position of command.

"It should be added that at the time of dealing with that particular case, as set forth by Lord Dundonald, Mr. Fisher was not acting merely as a minister specially interested in the eastern township affairs, although such position would have given him an undoubted right to advise; he was acting for and with the authority of the minister of militia, who was absent from the capital, and therefore his action had all the force and authority of action by the responsible head of the department of militia and defence.

"In view of these facts it is difficult to reach any other conclusion than that the action taken by Mr. Fisher was entirely within his right and duty as a cabinet minister and entirely in the interest of a non-partisan militia service.

"It is of importance to observe that the list from which one name was struck was completed by the approval of His Excellency the Governor-General on the 24th of May. At that time the minister of militia had returned to the Capital and was in daily attendance in his office, while Lord Dundonald was in similar attendance in his office in the same building. If Lord Dundonald had any reason to be dissatisfied with the list in its amended form, his obvious duty was to call on the responsible minister and invite a discussion of the subject. This he did not do. He made no representations whatever to his minister, but proceeded to Montreal and made his speech attacking the administration under which he was serving.

"The sub-committee, while drawing attention to the reasons which fully justify the steps taken by Mr. Fisher, deem it well to state that such explanation is not a necessary part of the record. Even if Mr. Fisher's action had been as erroneously stated there would still have been no justification for the course pursued by Lord Dundonald. Lord Dundonald is an officer of the Canadian government subject to all the limitations which are usually imposed upon public officials in regard to the action of their superior officers. For an official to make a public attack upon members of the government is a breach of discipline and a variance with the principles which

OF THE TOWN COUNCIL

Business Disposed of at Last Night's Meeting of the City Fathers

The town council met in regular session in the council chamber last evening, Mayor Short and Councillors Ross, May, Picard, Cushing and Grierson being present.

ASSESSMENTS.

Matters laid over from the court of revision were first dealt with. Mr. Engle appealed against the assessment of lot 12, block 19, river lot 72-14 to him as he was not the owner. The assessment was changed to the present owner. He also objected to the valuation of lot 196, block 1, H. B. R. The valuation of surrounding lots was considered and the assessment left as made. Mr. Engle also addressed the council re the grading of Second street from Peace to McKenzie avenues. The town engineer was instructed to proceed with this work at once.

The secretary treasurer presented the assessment of the C. J. R. property as $21,990. This assessment was confirmed.

Secretary Kinnaird also presented the assessment of U. S. Bolster, J. H. Dean, H. Heidebrecker and H. J. Ward, these parties to have the privilege of appealing at next regular meeting of the council on July 5th.

Several of the local real estate men addressed the council re the proposed amendments to the license by-law. Pending these negotiations the real estate men had not paid their license for the year and had been summoned therefor by the police. It was decided that action in the matter be dropped on the presentation of receipts for the license.

LICENSES.
The secretary reported that up to date not 25 per cent. of the licenses in town had been paid. The matter was discussed at length and the chief of police was instructed to look after the collection of all licenses promptly and was informed that there were several outside parties now doing business in town without license.

WAREHOUSE RENT.
C. M. Nairn asked that the rent for the old building beside the fire hall be lowered. The discussion was postponed until the vote is taken on the proposal to erect a town hall on the site of the old building, as if this by-law could be passed the old building would be removed at an early date.

NEW SIDEWALK.
The Great West Implement Company were given permission to build an eight foot sidewalk along the north side of Rice street from Fraser to Queens avenue.

The minutes of the preceding regular and adjourned meetings and of the meetings of the Court of Revision were read and confirmed.

COMMUNICATIONS.
Mr. Brent wrote the council in response to a letter from them saying he would take up the matter of the sale of debentures, but could not hold out much encouragement.

MAY APPEAL.
R. Secord, M.L.A., wrote re portions of river lots 17 and 19, which were taken into Strathcona last year. The letter was sent to Mr. C. Gallagher, one of the petitioners against the inclusion, to take action regarding the appeal thereto. Mayor Short was asked to confer with Mr. Rutherford regarding the introduction of a bill in accord with his appeal. It is to enable municipalities to assist each other in fighting corporations when necessary.

Mr. Kelsch wrote at some length regarding the new machinery for the power house.

THE STREET RAILWAY AGREEMENT.

Mr. Kennedy, solicitor for the Street Railway Company, addressed the council asking that the agreement between the town and the company be signed, as the company had performed the preliminary work demanded by the contract. The secretary said the delay in signing the agreement had been due to the fact that the town had no guarantee that these duties had been performed. Councils for May, who had signed the Mayor in the matters pertaining to the road, said he had signed under the assurance from the town solicitor that the procedure was in order.

PUBLIC MEETING.
The secretary presented communications from the Territorial government giving the description of the town and the land immediately adjoining it, which had been asked for by the council in a letter a short time since. This, however, proved rather indefinite and the land office had been asked for plans of the district showing the portions of the river lots affected which were included within the limits of the town at present.

The date of Friday, July 15th, was fixed for holding a public meeting for the discussion of the question of having the town incorporated as a city.

POLICE FOR FAIR GROUNDS.

The request of the Exhibition Association that the Chief of Police be allowed to have supervision of the special constables at the fair grounds during the fair was referred to the license and police committee to be dealt with in the regular meeting. A letter from the Canada Foundry Co. was filed, asking for copies of resolutions passed by the council some time since. The required copies had been forwarded by the Secretary-Treasurer.

A letter from W. J. Carter claiming discreditable treatment from the Secretary-Treasurer was filed after discussion.

Mr. Chipman wrote saying he was forwarding copies of the plans of the service systems already put in by the town, of the additional work which is proposed in this connection and of the town showing the whole work completed. The letter had been acknowledged and was ordered filed.

SUPPLIES FOR THE TOWN.

Councillor Cushing brought up the matter of the accounts. Several accounts were included in the list to be approved by his department which had not been certified to by any town official. All accounts should be certified to by the official under whose supervision the work was done. The accounts were accordingly left over to the next meeting, to be certified to in the meantime by the proper persons.

This led to a discussion of the purchases for the town and it was finally resolved that duplicate order books be kept by the Secretary-Treasurer and the town engineer, and that no supplies be purchased for the town without the authority of such order, the business houses in town to be notified in accordance with the regulation.

The account of the assessor for the year was referred to the finance committee.

A request of D. Ross to have the charter of the opening of the street between First and Second streets in the neighborhood of the Edmonton Hotel, which was laid over to the adjourned meeting.

BUSINESS BROUGHT FORWARD.

Mr. McLean reported on the petition of W. H. Clark and Father Leclerc, that there had been no survey of the sewer outlet. The council were unable therefore, to proceed with improvements to the street.

The request of the Chief of Police for three waterproof coats and caps for the men was granted, the Secretary to call for tenders and the license and police committee being authorized to make the purchase.

The city engineer reported having inspected the ground below the hill near the sewer outlet. He recommended that the water standing there be removed at once. The cost would be about $200. The report was adopted and the work ordered to be done.

Mr. Kelsch was granted a payment of $100 on account.

ELECTRIC LIGHT MATTERS.

Mr. Taylor reported having seen the Strathcona council re the matter of securing power or light from the Edmonton power station and they were willing to meet the Edmonton council to discuss the question of securing power to run the motors in the Strathcona power house. A committee of the Strathcona council had been appointed to confer with the Edmonton council on the matter. Mayor Short and the Fire, Water and Light committees were appointed a committee to meet the Strathcona committee on the matter.

TENDERS FOR COAL.

The tenders for the supply of coal for municipal purposes during the year were then opened. The tenders were as follows:—
J. R. Stewart, Mine Run, $2.75; Slack, $1.75, during sleighing.
W. Humbertstone, Mine Run, $2.85; Slack, $1.75, during sleighing.
Cameron and Co., Mine Run, $2.75; Slack, $1.50.
Edmonton Coal Company, Mine Run, $2.40; Slack, $1.75.
Maya Coal Company, Mine Run, $2.75; Slack, $1.75.
Miner and Company, Mine Run, $2.75; Slack, $1.75.

The tenders were left over to the next meeting, the engineer to ascertain.

must necessarily obtain in the administration of military as well as civil affairs that it cannot with propriety be overlooked. It is impossible to do otherwise than characterize the speech of Lord Dundonald, as a grave act of indiscretion and insubordination.

"In the subsequent proceedings, further evidence has been afforded of Lord Dundonald's failure to appreciate the position he occupies as a public official. It appears that he desired to make a further communication on the subject. Instead of sending this communication to his minister, he sent it to an opposition member of parliament, and then forwarded a copy to the minister, to whom it was delivered at the very moment when, as previously announced, a statement was to be made in parliament."

"The sub-committee deeply regret that an officer of Lord Dundonald's high rank should have been so misguided as to fall into these grave errors and to pursue a course which if ignored, would be fatal to that discipline and subordination to constituted authority which are essential in both civil government and military service."

"For the reasons herein set forth, the sub-committee advise that the Right Honorable the Earl of Dundonald be forthwith relieved of his position as general officer commanding the militia in Canada."

"The committee of the privy council concur in the foregoing and submit the same for approval."

(Signed) J. J. McGEE,
"Clerk of the Privy Council."

As Others See Us

The Lettbridge News says: Mrs. Sage went out to Fort Saskatchewan last week to spend a summer holiday with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. D. McLean. Mr. Sage was her equine as far as Edmonton. He reports having seen a good many Lettbridge old and young farmers at work with their teams about 30 minutes with Capt. Coffinham and family at Red Deer. The Capt. seems to agree with the glass, and is building quite a large residence in keeping with the beautiful surrounding scenery. Red Deer is also having a new court house and land office.

At Edmonton the Manitoba Grand Lodge, A. F. & A. M., was in session and on Thursday evening a concert and ball was given by the fraternity in the skating rink. No expense had been spared in the get up. The flooring alone cost about $2,000 and etc's would cost about the same, but everything was splendid and worthy of the craft.

The only thing out of joint in a visit to Edmonton is the railroad non-service between Strathcona on this side the river and Edmonton on that. That three mile run is simply disgraceful. It is said that this will be remedied shortly. Edmonton is booming. So was Winnipeg once upon a time. The smaller towns between Macleod and Calgary and between Calgary and Edmonton without exception, show signs of healthy steady growth; building operations are in full swing all along the route.

A Moosomin Wind Storm

From the Spectator:
Last Friday evening Moosomin had rather rough treatment by a genuine western wind storm. During the day the sky wore a threatening look which deepened into ominous blackness towards evening and shortly after eight o'clock the storm burst. The wind blew furiously and rain accompanied with light hail stones fell freely. It was not a pleasant experience for those who happened to be out when the storm raged over the town and prairie. Buildings, even some of the strongest, trembled under the pressure, while the lighter structures shook and creaked under the strain, some collapsing altogether.

The first break of the storm was the worst and then it was that most of the damage was done. Windmills bent, and chimneys fell, roofs flew and window panes gave way before the maddest of the wind. It was the worst storm in the experience of the town.

Three of the churches ably share of the strength of the wind. The south-west chimney of the Methodist church and the tall chimney of the Baptist church fell but owing to the direction of the wind, nearly south, they fell clear of the buildings, but the east chimney of St. Andrew's church falling, crashed through the roof of the choir extension, covering the pulpit and stairs with broken brick, plaster, shingles and lathing. Mr. Laycock was the first to notice the damage and he and Mr. Miller were soon at the scene removing the pulpit furniture out of the debris and out of reach of the falling rain. The furniture escaped wonderfully well and will be little the worse for their rough usage. But when those gentlemen first entered the church the appearance indicated sad ruin and damage. The new organ was untouched as the bricks and plaster fell well to the front of it over the pulpit platform.

Mr. A. S. Smith's windmill yielded to the strain and fell over the side of the building where it hung well out of the wind. And the windmill at the town tank too yielded and is a complete wreck.

Mr. J. Kilpatrick's new stable was lifted and turned over a couple times. A horse and a cow which were in the stable at the time were unhurt and stranger still the stable windows stowed away in the stable were intact not a pane being broken. Mr. Geo. Patterson's new stable was almost demolished, and Mr. Baird's near by was moved a few feet off its foundation.

The lumber in three lumber yards grew suddenly lively, but Mr. Hind's suffered most. Part of the north half of the roof of one of his lumber sheds to the rear of his yard was torn off and flung into the adjoining lot. Mr. J. S. Ireland's house just north of Mr. Hind's yard had a strange experience. The chimney was taken, and two scantlings were driven endways through the roof, the ends reaching to the upper roof, one on each side of the bed in the room at that part of the building. It appears that part of the shed roof was lifted up and hurled against the roof of Mr. Ireland's house. The family made very more than started by the crashing noise and the flying boards.

Many outcrops were sent tumbling and several windows were minus panes in short order.

Anthracite at Banff

The C.P.R. is spending half a million dollars in the development of the anthracite coal fields at Banff, the only anthracite mines in Canada and hardly heard of even in the west. It is said that when the preparing plant is fully installed the west will have a hard coal that will be quite as excellent as the famous Pennsylvania anthracite.

W. H. Aldridge, chief of all the mining and smelting interests of the Canadian Pacific Company, was in Winnipeg a few days since from Banff and stated the above facts. The preparing plant will not be ready until next summer, but large shipments will be made from the Banff mines for the first time this winter.

"These mines, hardly ever heard of," said Mr. Aldridge, "are one of only three anthracite coal mines in the Rockies over the whole of North America, another field being in the States and the third in Mexico. The Canadian field at Banff has vast resources and will yet be a great industry."

"It is for the installation of the preparing plant that the company is making this great expenditure, the purpose of this plant being to size and clean the coal as is always necessary in anthracite. Scientifically speaking the Banff coal is a semi-anthracite, but in analysis within two per cent pure."

Mr. Aldridge spoke interestingly of the other resources of Canada in the bowels of the west. "Canada is supplied with her own lead entirely now," he said, "except for the white lead."

We do not supply this, as we have no roasting plant, which we are so anxious to get. We mine a lot of copper and export silver to China and Japan. We are enlarging the refinery at Trail steadily."

The New Commander

Discussing the vacancy created by the retirement of Lord Dundonald, the Regina Standard (Independent) says:

"The dismissal of Lord Dundonald by the Dominion government leaves open a position which has long been filled by officers from the Imperial service. The question naturally arises now, as it arose some time ago, why should we not have a Canadian officer for the command of our forces?"

"Hitherto the militia has been commanded by a British officer. That was one of the requirements of the old militia law which declared that the officer commanding 'shall be of the rank of colonel or rank superior thereto, and of His Majesty's regular army.' This would admit of the appointing of a Canadian officer who has served in the regular army and there are plenty of them."

"The South African war showed us that the Canadian officers do not have to take a back seat for the English. They held up their end and the men almost invariably made a better showing than the soldiers of the regular army in any of the battles in which they were engaged."

"Under the proposed new Militia Law, the test of having to serve in the Imperial army is done away with and this will give the Canadian officers a chance for the position. The new law, however, does not say that the commander shall not be an officer of the Imperial army and it is thus left open for the Canadian government to say whether they will discriminate against the Canadians and appoint a British officer, or give our own officers a trial for the highest military position in Canada."

A Lawyer and His Robber Client

Toronto Star:

A somewhat extraordinary exercise of the duty that a lawyer owes to his client is reported from a western town where a man having stolen $10,000 from a mail bag, confided his case to a lawyer, gave him keys that enabled him to get the money where it had been hidden and from time to time received from the lawyer advances of the stolen money as the latter converted it into small bills at one of the local banks.

Considerable latitude of confidence reposed in him by a client. He is not supposed to rush to the police with information confided to him. Such confidence are privileged like those of the confessional. There is considerable curiosity in the public mind as to whether criminals admit their guilt to the lawyers who defend them. People speculate a great deal on this especially where crimes of a detestable nature are charged against men who are defended by lawyers of character and repute. It is supposed that a lawyer may often feel in duty bound to defend a man whom he does not admire, whose guilt he suspects, and that he is careful not to permit his client to say anything to him except in answer to wisely worded questions.

But surely there can be no question as to the duty of a lawyer who is informed of a burglary, told where the stolen money is secreted, asked to secure it, keep charge of it, and hand it discreetly, so that the thief may enjoy it without running risk of detection by handling it himself. This would make of the lawyer a "fence."

A lawyer's professional duty to a criminal cannot rightly begin until the man is charged with a crime; before that, if he aids him, he is morally a confederate.

A Montana Hold-Up

Two masked men held up the Northern Coast Limited, the Northern Pacific passenger train eastbound, at about a mile and a half east of Bearmouth, Mont., on Friday. After bringing the train to a stop they dynamited the express car, blew open the safe and secured all of its contents. The amount secured is not known but it is believed to be large. After blowing out the rear lights of the train the two men disappeared. The hold-up was similar to the one which occurred two years ago at nearly the same spot and in which Engineer O'Neill lost his life.

The robbers boarded the tender of the engine at the Bearmouth water tank. After having remained quiet until the train had gone a mile and a half they crawled up over the coal and covered Engineer Wade and Fireman Reed with their guns. The train was stopped and the engineer and fireman were marched back to the express car. The express messenger was commanded to open the door but refused. The engineer was then compelled to light a stick of dynamite placed against the car door. The explosion completely wrecked the door and the engineer and fireman were compelled to proceed the hot-up into the car. When admission was gained the robbers at once directed their attention to the strong box. Five sticks of dynamite were placed on top of the safe and ignited, but the force of the charge was insignificant and another one with a large cap was used. The second charge blew out the side of the car and threw the safe forty feet.

After rifling the safe of the valuables the robbers commanded the train crew to remain quiet and no harm would be done them. While this conversation was going on one of the robbers accidentally struck the engineer with his revolver, and in apologizing called him by name, revealing a possibility that the robbers may be railroad men. The crew were forced back to the engine, the robbers extinguished the signal lights in the cars and disappeared in the darkness. Meanwhile the passengers were terror stricken and had crawled under everything that offered a hiding. The rear brakeman meantime ran back to Bearmouth where communication was had with Missoula. A posse was summoned and Supt. Thanner's private car was soon on its way to the scene. The bloodhound at Deschlois prison has been wired for. Four men are thought to be in the band. Two deputies are on their way from Missoula up the Hell Gate canyon to head off escape in that direction, and it is believed the men cannot get away. The railroad people were expecting the hold-up before the previous two days but looked for it on the Phillipsburg branch.
